Percorsi del Museo Civico di Palazzo Cuttica

Category: Museum
business description: The origin of the civic museum of Alessandria dates back to 1854 when a local notary, Antonio Maria Viecha, donated his collection of paintings, sketches and drawings by the painter Giovanni Migliara to the city.
In the rooms of the 18th century Palazzo Cuttica, in the heart of the city centre, visitors can enjoy the Exhibitions of the Civic Museum with a selection of works from the civic collections.
Of special importance is the archaeological collection of Cesare Di Negro Carpani, a nineteenth-century collector and scholar. There are more than 1,000 exhibits, where epigraphic material from an early Christian cemetery is on display alongside funeral items from Ligurian tombs and other domestic items; this is an important collection, but also an excellent example of a private collection from the nineteenth century.
One room is dedicated to the pictorial era of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries with many important examples of sacred art from Piedmont, Lombardy and northern Italy; the Tapestry room features two precious Flemish tapestries from the late 17th century; the Napoleonic room is dedicated to the French general and to the battle of Marengo, fought close to the city of Alessandria in June 1800. The Rooms of the choir books and vestments, dedicated to the Dominican saint, Pius V, exhibit the sacred vestments and precious illuminated choir books, commissioned by the same Pope Ghislieri, the only Pope to come from Piedmont.
